Leander Browning, of Brooke County. This gentleman is the Republican nominee for the State Senate in this Senstorial district, and we trust that our Republican friends in Hancock and Brooke will take notice of the fact and see that his name appears in its proper place on their county tickets. He was placed in nomination by the conferees of poke and Ohio counties at their meeting at Wellsburg on Monday last. Mr. Browning is a man of education and highly respectable standing in Brooke, d will make an intelligent member of the Senate if elected. Two of our citizens who were abroad this last Summer-Mr. John Bishop and Mr. Lewis Jones-report that in England the people are very largely anxious to see the Democratic Presidential nominees elected in this country this fall. They look upon the Democracy as the oppoents of a protective tariff and upon the Republicans as the advocates of such a ariff, and they ascribe not a little of their that they are shut out from the American lican Congress. They have seen that Mr. Morrison, the Democratic Chairman of materially reducing the present duty on English iron, and upon ther articles of English manufacture, and they hope that if the Democracy son tariff will be substituted for the pres ent Republican tariff, and that thus their ed industries will revive through a demand from this country for English land you hear the leading people hoping at this time that Tilden and Hendricks will be elected President and Vice Presi dent of the United States. They expec to be able to sell their goods in this cour try after a Democratic triumph by means schedule as Mr. Morrison prepared during the late session of Congress. As long s the existing tariff remains they have no hopes of regaining possession of our market, and they do not look for a change in their favor until the Republi-in the year 1870-the last year in which the Rapublicans were in power in West Virginia-the appropriation for the pay of members of the Legislature was $20,000. The next year, 1871, the Democracy came into power, under the cry of reform, and immediately the appropriation of 1870 was increased to $21,000. Next year they raised the cry of reform a little louder and increased the appropriation to $26,000. Finding that a good thing, and that it paid well to keep up the cry, they continued on in the cry, they continued on the business, and the next year they increased the appropriation to $103,091 53. They not only wasted this immense sum money, but they saddled on us that product of rebel Bourbonism known as the Democratic lawyers' constitutiona contrivance gotten up to make litigation the principal business in West Virginia-to keep the people perpetually embroiled in petty suits, to the great impoverishment of suitors and the enrichment of the swarms of one-horse political lawyers that now feed upon the body politic like so many devouring grass

Last year the appropriation for pay of members amounted to $53,280 20. Mem bers were allowed mileage for distance they never traveled. Those who came here from the Kanawha by the Ohio rive were allowed mileage by the Chesapeake à Ohio road, via Staunton, Harper's Fer ry and the Baltimore & Ohio road. Even the committee clerks and pages were al lowed mileage, although they had no more right to it than the lobby member of the Legislature. The mileage of the Ranawha county members was increased to 930 miles each. The Democratic member from Wyoming was allowed pay for the full session, although only present a lew days before the close.

Thus it is that the money of the people has been wasted by the West Virginia Democracy under the cry of "Reform."
Is it any wonder that Mr. West, of Harrison (Democrat) arose in his place in the House at the close of the late session and predicted a deficit of $100,000 at the close of the fiscal year.

A Mean Attempt to Deceive.
On Tuesday morning the following aragraph appeared among the "political

"There was a man in roll the system of the s exclaimed exultingly before a small knot of corner politicians, "Just wait 'till you hear from Triadelphia; she'll scratch the State ticket like h—ll, but she's solid for Tilden." We are sorry to hear this. It will no doubt have a very depressing effect upon the canvass in Ohlo and Indians. We were prepared for a hard fight, but did not anticipate a Waterloo, As Gov. Hayes is in the hands of his friends, he cannot consistently withdraw from the canvass; but we can imagine his utter fdespair when he hears from Triadelphia."

In yesterday's issue of the Wheeling

In yesterday's issue of the Wheeling Register the above paragraph was distort ed and perverted by the unscrupulous manager and manipulator of that paper to read as follows:

Poor Hayes. Everybody now sees that he is practically out of the fight, and it has been believed by many that he would withdraw immediately after the October elections and save his money. But the INTELLIGENCER thinks he will hardly do so, although that sheet is in a quandary as to what he will do. It says:

"As Gor Hawes his in bands of his friends, he "As Gov. Hayes is in the hands of his friends, I annot constatently withdraw from the canvai ut we can imagine his utter despair."

The railroad trains have come to be so regular that it now does not take more than two days for a letter to reach Wheeling from Bellaire.

Dr. Baker and wile, Mrs. G. R. Laizure and Mrs. Hutchinson left for Philadelphia on Tuesday.

Gen. Benj. F. Butler, the Massachusetts "widow," spent about an hour in Bellaire the other day, not of his lown accord, however. A Big Day at Moundsville.

Elitors Intelligencer:
Day before yesterday was a great day in Moundaville—not aday of Democratic victory, as stated in the Register of yesterday morning, but, if there was ever a day in our county that bore fruit for the Republican party, it was Monday. I will not attempt to give an account of the joint discussion between Col. Wilson and Mr. Hutchinson. Suffice it to say that one party discovery General showed the joint discussion between Col. Wilson and Mr. Hutchinson. Soffice it to say that our next Attorney General showed thin misself to be fully able to cope with his formidable antagonist. Mr. Wilson fully sustained his reputation as a good talker, in but in his first speech, which was to be fifty minutes (he spoke one hour) he did not souch on anything but our finances and the corruption of the Republican arty. Mr. Hutchinson, in his reply, not only answered every point made by the Colonel, but also reviswed the Democratic policy pursued in our State for the last six years under Democratic rule. In his reply, Col. Wilson dodged this issue entirely, although his opponent had dared him to a low up the cause of Democratic retrenchment and reform in West Virginia.

The speeches of both gentlemen were delivered in an able and dignified manner. The crowd was fully two-thirds Republican, and when it came to cheering the Democracy were nowhere. Col. Dan in Johnson was introduced at the close of Col. Ben's second speech, and spoke for a short time about what he knows of wearing the blue and adding in putting down the rebellion. How he came to be a Democrat is surprising to some of the Colonel's warm old army friends here,

Bellitors intelligencer:

As the State canvass is getting a little rwarm, I thought I would furnish you with some information about Mr. Mathews, the kid glove, codfish aristocracy, Democratic candidate for Governor of West Virginia. This is something that happened here not long ago, and as it is something that will keep, and true to the letter, I think it will do to publish yet, and it also ought to be.

The gentleman was stopping at McGuire's house of entertainment. A fire was discovered in his room when he was there. I I was accidental, very true. Somebody in the family saw the smoke and went to his room. He was standing before the glass with his back to the fire, fixing his necktie and those immaculate side whiskers he sports. When he saw the house was on fire, probably through his carelessness, he coolly took his carpet sack and coat and left the house, going to a safe place, and leaving the family and neighbors to fight the fire, which they did with a will for something like an hour before they whipped it. He was evidently afraid to soil his clothes and kids in helping to save McGuire's house.

The railroad trains have come to be s

At night Hon. J. L. Stevens spoke for one and a half hours, and a more able, logical and convincing argument it has never been our privilege to hear. He discussed the real issues before us as a nation to-day in a manuer to convince even the most uncompromising Democrat that they, as a party, are in the wrong.

Mr. Stevens is not a pleasant speaker, but a very logical reasoner, and I have heard many say that it had never been their pleasure to listen to a more unanswerable argument. The low, mean insinuation of the correspondent of the Wheeling Register concerning his speech, that he favored an enterprise, &c., are simply false. He did oppose State rights most effectually. He showed that it was this idea that we are a confederation of States and not a republic, that caused the war of the rebellion, and he then showed in a manner too, that the Register's correspondent did not like that it
